Burn victim presents her gripping story in court

By FLORENCE MEEKS
ANP Staff Writer

Kristen Grauman tolerated crowds of cameras, flash bulbs and staring faces Tuesday morning when she sat before a packed courtroom to describe the night she was set on fire.

The 19-year-old talked about being splashed with something "cold and wet" that night, seconds before her body became a ball of flames.

Grauman identified two assailants in the Recorder's courtroom, defendants Vester Lee Mills, 20, and James Camilli, 40.

The Brownstown Township men could face up to life in prison if convicted of charges of assault with intent to murder.

Tuesday, Prosecutor Douglas Baker asked Grauman to discuss the night of her attack, June 23 - Grauman's birthday.

Grauman had been splashed with gasoline and set on fire at a deserted Romulus crossroad. The severe burns that covered 60 percent of her body resulted in a four-month hospital stay, gall bladder surgery and a bout with pneumonia. Years of reconstructive surgery remain ahead of her.

Grauman told Judge Edward Thomas and the two juries hearing the case that her first month of hospitalization was blurred by the morphine she needed to endure the pain of her injuries.

At the witness stand, Grauman's slight arms and legs were as much evidence to her injury as the scar tissue that covered her face and arms. When she walked across the room, she was slightly hunched over.

Also noticeable was the young woman's composure as she answered attorneys' questions, frankly discussing her use of crack cocaine the night of the attack and the details of her injuries.

Approximately 10 feet away from the testifying Grauman, Camilli looked directly at her through most of her account. Mills faced the opposite direction, often looking down.

Grauman testified she spent

"The next thing I see was a small flame. The next thing I knew I was a ball of flames out the window. I was out of the car, and I was rolling on the street trying to get them (the flames) out."

her birthday night with a friend, ending up at Taylor mobile home belonging to her friend's sister.

Before heading for home Grauman said she "smoked a rock," "snorted a few lines" and then smoked some more crack.

Defense attorneys Henry Scharg and Dan McGuire both commented on Grauman's self-description - geeked - as she began the mile walk toward her home that night.

A person feels geeked, she said, after smoking crack. It means to want more.

Walking home, Grauman wore white sweat pants, a tank top and a long-sleeve blouse. With her was a stem for smoking crack and a watch she said she took from her friend to sell for drug money.

Near an entrance to the Amberwood apartment complex off Leroy Road in Taylor, Grauman said she was approached by a man in a car. He shouted to her from behind.

"He asked me if I knew where to get some rocks," she told the jurors.

Grauman walked up to answer the driver, who she identified in court as Camilli. When he asked Grauman if she knew where to find $50 worth of crack, she agreed to show him.

"I said, 'Well, lets go.' He said he's got to wait for his buddy. I looked out and saw a man at the back talking," Grauman testified.

Grauman climbed into the 1978 Chevette driven by Camilli. The man who was talking outside entered, she said, and asked what Grauman was doing there. Camilli said she was going to show them where to find some crack, she testified.

The second man was Mills, Grauman said, pointing to him in the courtroom.

Heading toward Inkster along Leroy Street, Grauman instructed the men to turn right at a side street. That road would lead to the Pine Ridge apartment complex. Grauman and other residents have referred to the complex as Crack Ridge.

The driver did not turn right at the side street or at any of the following roads. Against Grauman's continued requests, he turned left at Inkster Road, she testified.

"I get scared. I keep telling them to stop the car and let me out. The younger guy says don't stop. Keep going," Grauman said.

Panicked, Grauman tried the back door, but it wouldn't open. She began to climb out a side window, she testified.

"The younger man grabbed me by the leg and wouldn't let go," she said. "I'm feeling something cold and wet on me."

At the time, Grauman said, she didn't know what the liquid was. She said she did know who held her and splashed her.

"The next thing I see was a small flame. The next thing I knew I was a ball of flames out the window," she said. "I was out of the car, and I was rolling on the street trying to get them (the flames) out...I started running across the road and fell into the ditch. I just heard a big ol' hiss, a hissing noise."

Baker asked Grauman if she recalled the ambulance workers who treated her at the roadside. They poured saline solution on her burned skin.

"I remember them dumping something cold and wet on me. I thought they were going to set me on fire again," she answered.

Sidewalk policy maybe changed ordinance refers to existing roads.

Another ordinance refers to requirements to construct sidewalks. Under current law, developers must agree to construct sidewalks on their sites before site-plan approval is granted.

The proposed amendment would allow the city planning commission during site-plan review to accept payment instead of construction. The money would go directly into a sidewalk escrow account.

A new ordinance section was written to deal with the payment-in-lieu-of-construction option and the sidewalk escrow account. Payments would be determined by the Department of Building and Safety.

City council would establish the escrow account, and the city treasurer would administer it. The money would be strictly for sidewalk construction, and it would only be returned to property owners after their complete sidewalk construction.

Interest earned would remain in the account.

Another amendment lists the conditions under which the city zoning board can waive or grant a variance for sidewalk construction.

at practically no cost. The $200,000 incentive package would also include property tax abatements.

Incentives offered from Minneapolis officials only total $40,000, Oakes said, making the county a serious competitor for the development.

"They're (Northwest) going to look seriously at what the offers are," he added, referring to a recent statement from airline officials.

McAnally said she does not know whether an overhaul facility would add to the noise problems currently associated with the airport.

"That kind of facility strips airplanes down to a skeleton and rebuilds it," she said.

The mayor told councilmembers county officials have asked her about the possibility of a Romulus tax abatement. McAnally said an abatement would not be offered without council consent, but pointed out the city has offered abatements in the past to encourage local development.

City officials responded favorably Monday to a $200,000 incentive package offered to Northwest Airlines by county officials hoping to house an aircraft facility at Detroit Metropolitan Airport.

Northwest officials recently announced plans to construct an overhaul/maintenance facility, according to Mayor Beverly McAnally.

"It would be a grand opportunity to Wayne County," she said. "There's a lot of heavy duty bidding to attract it."

"I think it's a long shot," she added. "Northwest has a very strong commitment to Minneapolis-St. Paul (hometown for the airline)."

"They are pulling out all the stops," said Dennis Oakes, community development director.

Oakes said county officials announced plans to offer Northwest a section of property at the east side of the airport

Checks will be in mail

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Staff Writer

It's bad enough when you're unemployed. But, the hurt is compounded when you have to stand in long lines, sometimes for hours, in order to receive your unemployment benefit check.

The wait and those long lines will disappear this week at the area Michigan Employment Security Commission offices, according to Robert Benedict, a MESC official. The MESC has adopted a new procedure that will make it unnecessary for those lines.

A "claims-by-mail" system will replace the old procedure of "waiting in lines" this week, MESC officials said.

Thomas S. Malek, MESC deputy director, explained why the agency switched to the new system.

"In recent weeks heavy claims loads and computer difficulties have caused some claimants to wait in long lines for their unemployment checks. With a claims-by-mail system, claimants will receive their benefits in a more efficient and timely manner.

"Once a new claim is filed, claimants may expect their first check after three weeks, instead of two," Malek continued. "The extra week is with federal guidelines and will allow MESC time to collect wage and separation information from employers."

According to agency officials, instead of making biweekly visits to an MESC office, claimants will now be able to complete a form certifying they meet eligibility requirements. The agency will review the certifications and then mail the check if no additional information is needed and the claimant qualifies.

Officials added that the MESC is in the process of upgrading the way they process claims. The agency will spend approximately $1 million to upgrade computer equipment. Money for computer upgrading has been approved by the state legislators and Gov. James Blanchard.

According to the agency, the MESC is also in the process of upgrading its regional computers that process claims, establish a backup system for preparing checks in the event that one of the regional computers fails and update the system's power fluctuation protection.

Malek stressed the new equipment will expedite claims processing and help prevent failure of the computer system.

Recycled paper use encouraged

Recycled paper is not only comparably priced to new stock, but it can be a money-saver for municipalities.

"This dispels the myth that recycled paper is too costly for general use," said Sandy Altschul, solid waste coordinator for the 17-member Conference of Western Wayne. "This is an important step for recycling, because it cannot work unless there is a market for the recycled products. By purchasing recycled paper, our communities are supporting the concept of recycling."

The consortium recently requested bids for recycled copy paper, bond and envelopes from area suppliers. The result was a bid from Butler Paper, of Livonia, which was lower than the prices charged from suppliers of new stock, Alschul said.

All municipalities, which are CWW members, plus schools and colleges may purchase recycled paper directly from the supplier at the bid price.

Altschul said he has requested copies of the orders placed for the recycled paper to track its use and determine the impact on the environment through the purchase of the recycled paper.

Man robbed in car

While stopped at a red light in Romulus, a 24-year-old Westland man was robbed at knifepoint early March 28.

Romulus police officials said the man was stopped at the intersection of Van Born Road and Henry Ruff when he was approached.

A man entered the unlocked car through the passenger door, produced a knife and demanded the driver's wallet. The driver complied.

The suspect then instructed the Westland man to drive south on Henry Ruff. At Beverly Road, the suspect left the car and fled westbound on foot.

Police say the victim was not injured. His wallet contained a small amount of cash and a National Bank of Detroit automatic teller machine card.

The suspect is described as a black male in his early 20s with a stocky build. He wore a dark ski cap, a dark jacket and blue jeans.

Golf study is scheduled

City officials will review a recent feasibility study next week concerning a city-owned golf course.

The study session is planned for 6:30 p.m. April 9 in city council chambers, city hall.

The golf course venture was proposed by city officials more than a year ago. An existing course, Shady Hollow, may close to make way for the extensive Metro World Centre.

A plot of city-owned land near Wick Elementary School is being considered for the proposed project. The course would be near Elmer Johnson Park and the site of another proposed city venture, a new recreation center.

Inkster Road to be improved

Plans are under way to surface Inkster Road from the Norfolk and Western railroad crossing to Van Born with widenings north and south of Ecorse Road.

The project is part of the Wayne County 1990 Internal Resurfacing Program. Through this program, city governments assume one-third of the improvement cost.

County officials estimate nearly four miles of Inkster will be resurfaced with 1.9 lane miles within Romulus borders.

At a cost of $96,000 per lane mile, the project will cost $369,600. Romulus will be responsible for $61,600.

Members of Romulus City Council approved a resolution presented by the mayor Monday night authorizing Romulus involvement in the resurfacing project.

Fire department buys safety system

Romulus City Councilmembers Monday night approved the purchase of personal safety systems for local firefighters.

The 16 Pal Personal Alert Safety Systems are to be used when firefighters enter a building fire or hazardous situation. If the wearer is motionless for 25 seconds, the system sounds an alarm. It can also be activated manually.

Fire Chief William Greenslait said the department will save money through a joint purchase with the Downriver Mutual Aid-Fire Chiefs.

Instead of $169, the units will cost $106 each. Greenslait recommended four units for each local fire station.

Superintendent addresses chamber

William Bedell, superintendent of Romulus Community Schools, acted as guest speaker before a Romulus Chamber of Commerce luncheon March 20.

Bedell's presentation focused upon funding programs for the school district. The superintendent condemned the existing funding formula offered by the state, claiming the distribution system is "confusing and unfair."

Railroad development to be protested

By FLORENCE MEEKS
ANP Staff Writer

A proposed plan to construct a railroad facility on the southwest side of town is receiving negative reviews from city officials.

Mayor Beverly McAnally presented city councilmembers Monday with a copy of an agreement between the Michigan Department of Natural Resources and Total Distribution Services, Inc.

Representatives from the Maryland company received DNR permission to construct four storage facilities and set-off rail tracks between Eureka and Pennsylvania roads.

Because the development would disturb more than two acres of existing wetlands, company officials are required by law to create a new wetland area. Total Distribution representatives agreed to establish 5.56 acres of wetlands in another section of town.

The DNR permit for the project, granted March 20, 1990, expires Dec. 31, 1991.

Complaints about the proposed project centered on railroad development, rather than protection of the wetlands.

"We don't need any more train tracks in this town any more than we need a second airport," said Councilmember William Wadsworth. "We've got to protect the future residential parts of town."

Wadsworth said the master plan designates the west side as the main spot for residential development. Railroad tracks would deter residential developers from that area, he said.

Wadsworth said tracks, which often mean blocked roadways, would also pose problems for school buses and police cars.

"We should do everything that we can legally do to make sure it doesn't come here," Wadsworth said.

City attorney Barry Seifman suggested councilmembers turn the railroad plan and wetland agreement over to city engineers for examination. If they determine the plan is impractical, the city would have a useful point of argument, he said.

"What I really think it comes down to is whether the engineers say we have a leg to stand on or we don't have a leg to stand on," he said. "I don't think it's a legal technicality."

Councilmembers unanimously approved a resolution made by Wadsworth to seek a legal means for preventing the railroad development, including research by engineers.

"I think we should make communication with communities south of us," suggested Councilmember Russell Lambert, referring to towns that would also be affected by the railroad.

The mayor agreed to present councilmembers with a budget amendment to fund an engineering study during a future meeting.

2 arrested on drug charges

By FLORENCE MEEKS

Two Detroit men stopped by Romulus police officers for a traffic violation March 26 were arrested for the possession of illegal drugs.

Lebron Gerald Love, 29, and Keith Rodgers, 34, were arraigned the day of their arrests in the 34th District Court in Romulus. Both men face charges for the possession of crack cocaine and marijuana.

Bond was set at $10,000 cash for Love and $20,000 cash for Rodgers.

The defendants were remanded to Wayne County jail to await an April 4 preliminary examination.

Romulus police officials said the defendants were pulled over for a traffic violation early March 26 along Interstate-94 near Inkster Road.

In the defendants' car, police discovered narcotics crammed in a small bag, crack cocaine and a small amount of marijuana, according to reports.

Funding sought for park

By FLORENCE MEEKS
ANP Staff Writer

If a recently submitted request for a state grant receives approval, Elmer Johnson Park may net an additional 20 acres.

Community development officials submitted the grant application late last week. They said word about approval may take as long as four months.

Dennis Oakes, community development director, said the park expansion would serve two purposes.

First, a larger park would allow for a second access to the park from Wick Road.

"It would connect Elmer Johnson to the proposed recreation development site," Oakes added.

City officials have been considering a recreation facility for Wick Road near Wick Elementary School and Elmer Johnson Park. The proposed recreation complex would include a gymnasium, racquetball facilities, game room, running track, locker rooms, multipurpose room, kitchen, exercise and weight rooms and an arts and crafts room. A swimming pool is also being considered.

Debate over proposals to convert the former South Middle School building into a recreation center has led city officials to distribute a survey including questions about the types of activities residents want. Responses will impact city officials' decision about a facility.

Also under consideration for the Wick Road area is a city-owned golf course.

Police seek youth in connection with fire

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Staff Writer

Teen-age 'hooligans' are suspected of causing a fire that left more than $40,000 in damage at an Inkster junkyard last week.

No one was reported injured, according to Inkster Fire Chief Victor Boulanger.

The fire, which started at approximately 3:30 p.m. March 28 at Bishop's Junkyard, is of suspicious origin, the fire chief added.

Eighteen local firefighters, including members of the volunteer force, fought the blaze for four hours. No assistance was needed from neighboring communities — although they were alerted — to battle the fire, Boulanger said.

The junkyard, located at 2780 Springhill, covers approximately two acres, and is just south of Michigan Avenue and Middlebelt Road.

The blaze sent a funnel of black smoke into the sky as hundreds of used tires caught fire. As the fire reached junked cars, it set off explosions. Some of the vehicles still had small amounts of gasoline in the tanks, Boulanger explained.

Police were forced to close down eastbound Michigan Avenue to traffic because of the poor visibility caused by the smoke.

Action by the junkyard owner, Freddie Gordon, helped local firefighters.

"He (Bishop) used his heavy equipment to cut a path to the fire for our men," Boulanger explained. "He really helped us by making that path. He didn't waste any time. Our men didn't have to climb over the junk cars and tires to get to the fire."

"Also, we were fortunate that the wind took the smoke straight up, giving us a clear view of the situation,"

Boulanger added.

Boulanger added that he put Detroit Edison and Amtrak train officials on alert because the fire was adjacent to the rail tracks and endangered utility poles.

The owner of the junkyard, Boulanger said, has had problems with teen-agers, who apparently have been trespassing on his property.

"Although we don't have any suspects," Boulanger said, "we're looking into the possibility that kids may have been involved in setting the fire. The fire remains under investigation."

Students graduate from drug program

By FLORENCE MEEKS
ANP Staff Writer

Before a packed crowd in city council chambers, a group of Romulus sixth-graders Monday night graduated from a semester of drug education.

The commencement ceremony was staged for participants in the Drug Awareness Resistance Education program — approximately 170 students.

Through the DARE course, sixth-graders meet with a Romulus police officer one hour per day for 17 weeks. Self esteem, dangers of drugs, ways to say no to peers — each session tackles a different theme. And like most classes, DARE demands classroom participation and homework from the students.

During the graduation ceremony, DARE instructor John Smagner described one of the tools he uses to reward good students, the DARE Bear.

"It's a little different when you see a uniformed police officer running around a school with a teddy bear under his arm instead of a gun," Smagner said.

DARE Bear is used in schools with more than one sixth-grade class. To reward student participation during the DARE sessions, the bear becomes a guest star in the classroom for week-long engagements.

"Sometimes the students share him," Smagner said. "All of the classrooms are very good. Sometimes it's very hard to make a choice."

Smagner also complimented the city for supporting the DARE program during more than two years. While most communities participating in the program devote one police officer to the classroom, Romulus utilizes three officers, he said.

The funding system for DARE is also unique, Smagner said.

"We are one of the few police departments around that uses the drug forfeiture fund for drug education and prevention," he said.

Drug forfeiture funds are monies seized from drug dealers. By law, communities can "recycle" the money for narcotics enforcement.

Smagner said another semester of DARE is under way with graduation expected toward the end of the school year. Tentative plans are in the works to videotape DARE activities for the local cable television channel.

gas station, a gas station attendant who sold approximately 28 cents worth of gas and professionals who examined evidence for this case.

Sign-up is under way for festival events

The countdown to the Romulus Festival is down to a month, and festival committee members are putting finishing touches on a year of planning.

Celebrated in conjunction with Michigan Week, the festival traditionally features a kickoff parade through town, carnival games, arts and crafts, a race (not to mention a new one-mile walk), dancing and plenty of food.

This year the event is scheduled for May 18, 19 and 20. In addition to the traditional festival grounds behind the recreation center at Bibbins Street, the Romulus Historical Park off Hunt Street will be home to some activities.

Members of the Romulus Historical Society plan to stage a Civil War period reenactment at the park. Members of a national group will set up camp there dressed as Confederate soldiers and civilians from the Civil War period.

Meanwhile, members of the Romulus Festival Committee said sign-up has begun for two popular festival activities.

Application forms are available at the Romulus Recreation Center for the parade and arts and crafts show.

Officials fight school-funding issue in the courts and in the legislature

By PATRICIA BROWN
ANP Staff Writer

In-formula school districts across the state have been facing financial turmoil. Much of the problem is caused from the formula provided by the state, according to school officials. They say the formula results in inequitable funding for in-formula districts plagued by declining enrollment and increasing tax assessments.

In-formula districts receive a percentage of their funding from the state. For example, if a district receives 60 percent of its funds from local assessments, the remaining 40 percent will be made up by the state.

If assessments increase and the district receives 65 percent of its funding from the local taxpayers, then the remaining 35 percent will be provided by the state.

Each time assessments are increased in an in-formula district, the local taxpayers pay more and the state pays less, according to school officials.

An out-of-formula district receives all of its funding from the local taxpayers because the assessments collected are greater than 100 percent of the school budget.

Officials from both in-formula and out-of-formula districts agree that the state system for funding education is unfair.

"It's a very unfair situation. The answer is to provide enough dollars in the state formula to bring in-formula districts up to the level of financing that the out-of-formula districts are receiving," said Joseph Marinelli, superintendent of Livonia schools.

When a district begins to suffer from declining enrollment, then it loses dollars which would have been provided to the district from the state on a per-pupil basis, according to school officials. The only alternative many in-formula districts have, according to officials, is to collect more dollars locally by increasing millage rates.

It's very unfair situation. The answer is to provide enough dollars in the state formula to bring in-formula districts up to the level of financing that the out-of-formula districts are receiving.

— Joseph Marinelli
Livonia superintendent

All funding from the state is fixed, with the only variable being the school millage, which can be increased only with a vote of the people.

Some districts in Michigan can afford to put more than $8,000 behind each student in the district. Most districts average approximately $3,200 per student.

According to Wayne-Westland Superintendent of Schools Dennis O'Neill, the state pays approximately $16,000 each year to house one prisoner, and approximately $2,500 each year to fund one child's education. He said that is unfair.

There are several attempts now in progress to change the way in which schools are financed. Some of those attempts are listed below.

- Many in-formula school districts are now part of a lawsuit against the State of Michigan. The first step of the lawsuit is to find out if school districts can sue the state using school funds.

O'Neill said it's a long drawn out process, but that it is a beginning in the battle to establish equitable funding for education.

- A group of citizens have begun circulating a petition to cap school operating millage rates at 30 mills; guarantee every child a base funding level of $4,100; and tighten the state government constitutional revenue limit so that state tax hikes would not be possible without an election, according to officials. The proposal is being supported by former

Oakland County Prosecutor L. Brooks Patterson.

The average school millage rate in the state is 33.8 mills. The average per-pupil spending rate in Michigan is $3,200.

The group which is headed by Patterson and Patrick Anderson, an economist, needs to collect enough signatures to have the proposal placed on the ballot in November.

- Also in the works is a proposed Senate Joint Resolution which would amend the Michigan Constitution. If approved the amendments would require legislature to fund secondary and elementary education on an equitable basis. It would give boards of education constitutional status, and the current anti-discrimination provision which applies to kindergarten through 12th-grade education would be extended to prohibit sex discrimination.

Fifteen percent of the school districts in the state receive less than $3,000 per student from the state. Approximately 1.6 percent of the districts in the state are spending $7,000 or more on each student.

Much of the differences in funding is based on the property wealth of the community.

"The local property tax system enables wealthy districts to levy lower taxes than poor districts and still generate greater per pupil revenues," according to the proposal.

The current financial system for education in Michigan would be modified to make education more equitable, according to the proposal. The state could appropriate a greater portion of state revenues for kindergarten through 12th-grade education; modify one or more existing tax rates or bases; provide for tax-base sharing of the growth in property tax collections; enact new taxes; provide for larger property tax collection units or develop incentives to reorganize school districts, according to officials.

While all of these attempts are under way either in the legislature or the courts or at the county level, individual school districts among the hardest hit are struggling to stay afloat, according to O'Neill.

Students to visit Toronto

Sixth grade Merriman Elementary School students are sampling big city life today through a daylong field trip to Toronto.

Participants in the bus trip were to leave town at 5:30 a.m. and return at approximately 11 p.m.

Belleville agency, Adventure Travel, made the arrangements for the trip.

The Toronto Science Center was to be the main event of the day, but stops are also planned for the CN Tower, Castle Loma and the Organ Grinder Restaurant.

Two teachers and four parents are acting as chaperones.

Approximately 40 students were expected to attend the Toronto visit. Remaining sixth-graders will participate in a local trip later this year.

Student test
scores recognized

Romulus school officials recently acknowledged a lengthy list of local students who received certificates of achievement for earning high scores on the Michigan Educational Assessment Program test.

Student certificates of recognition are awarded to fourth, seventh or 10th grade students achieving 100 percent in the math sections of the test and satisfactory performance on the essential skills reading test. Certificates are also awarded to fifth, eighth and 11th graders who achieve 100 percent in the science category.

Sixty Romulus students were honored.

In addition, Barth and Merriman elementary schools were each cited for having 75 percent or more fourth grade students earning top scores in the math category.

Disney trip is

Area teens are participating in a contest to win a week-long trip to Disney World.

The competition is based on community service and salesmanship efforts.

Michigan Elite Teens is sponsoring the competition. The area group allows teens to earn spending money by door-to-door candy sales. It is intended to teach salesmanship and citizenship, according to local team leader Fred Longton.

Teens that win the current contest will spend a week camping in Florida beginning April 15. Scheduled stops include Disney World, MGM Studios, Wet 'N Wild Amusement Park and Cocoa Beach.

Teens involved in Michigan Elite teens include residents from Romulus, Wayne, Westland and Canton Township.

Student has taste
for the bright lights

By FLORENCE MEEKS
ANP Staff Writer

For two days, Rory Rangel had a taste of bright lights, glamour and endless flash bulbs.

Rangel last weekend was a contestant in the Miss Perfect Teen Michigan pageant—the first beauty contest for the Romulus high school student.

The day before she left for her big weekend at the Holiday Inn-Fairlane, the 15-year-old discussed her expectations for the competition.

She was to spend Saturday rehearsing and participating in a personality interview. A preliminary show was to be staged that night.

Rory Rangel

Sunday was the final day of competition.

Contestants were to model before the judges in two outfits, evening gown and sportswear.

"I've never done anything like this before," Rangel said.

When she was a little girl, Rangel dreamed of being a model without really believing she would achieve that goal.

Now, her goals have shifted and Rangel intends to work toward a career in child psychology or psychiatry.

Still, she never completely let go of her desire to model.

When she came across a pamphlet about the Miss Perfect Teen pageant earlier this year, she decided it would be a way to experience modeling first hand.

From the beginning, she said, her family was supportive of the idea. Not quite as confident as they were, Rangel was surprised when her application to compete was approved.

"I never thought I would be accepted," she said.

Out of the 500 teens who applied for the pageant, 81 were accepted to participate.

Monday, Rangel said she was happy with her decision to compete. She did not place in the pageant, but said she did end up with what she wanted, modeling experience.

"I'd probably be willing to do it again. I expected it to be a lot of fun, and that was exactly what it was."

Another Romulus teen, Cynthia Freitag, was a runner-up in the pageant.

High school students honored

Thirty-three Romulus High School students were recognized as December students of the month.

Teachers selected these students for their behavioral and academic excellence during the month.

The honored students received a certificate of achievement and a $50 U.S. savings bond, compliments of local sponsors.

December students of the month were: Tinna Biro, Mary Campbell, Shawn Davis, Raymond Good, Deanna Hixon, Lisa Kochanski, Kristy Manson, Larry Perkins, Renee Roehrick, Leonard Rozdoske, Tracy Shotts, Mike Brooker, Brian Clark, Brian Ellison, Ver-rell Gossett, Kimberly Hixon, Matt McIntosh, Eric Marcum, James Foreman, Sherill Greca, Steve Hockett, Bonita McMullen, Allyna Moton, Robert Rivest, Katrina Roscoe, Richard Schwartz and Tim Wilson.

The December bond sponsors were: Marriott Hotel, United Brass, Holiday Inn, Stears Hardware, Total Petroleum, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Coleman, Compactor Service Repair, Romulus Kiwanis, Lear Siegler, Header Products, Edgewood, Kelsey Hayes, Johnson Fuel, St. Lawrence Press, Crova GMC Trucks, Federal Mogul, Host International, Athletic Department, Social Tree, Horizon Enterprise Inc., and the Romulus Progress Club.

talent

Dancers, rap artists and rock stars performed before a packed auditorium at Romulus Senior High School Friday night to show their stuff at the annual talent show.

Some of the performances included elaborate dance numbers. Other students brought record players to create the background music associated with rap music.

Checkpoints tested in court

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Staff Writer

Wayne County Circuit Court Judge James Rashid will hear the testimonies of final witnesses today in the hearing on the American Civil Liberty Union lawsuit charging that the traffic checkpoints set up by the Wayne County Sheriff's Department last September in Inkster violated the constitutional rights of citizens.

Sgt. Timothy Kane of the Inkster Police Department and Deputy Calvin Pace, a photographer for the Wayne County Sheriff's Department, took the stand Tuesday.

Pace told the court he had been assigned to take photos, and had been at the checkpoints for approximately two hours.

Kane's testimony touched on his assignment at the Demby Public Housing project, where known crack houses and illegal drugs were operating.

Neal Bush, attorney for the ACLU, said police couldn't produce any documents that showed they had search warrants to search homes in the blocks they (police) raided.

"Our argument has been and continues to be that they can't stop people for no reason. People were stopped for no better reason than they happened to be in a particular place.

"And that action, we believe, is a violation of the Fourth Amendment," Bush added.

Earlier, Sheriff Robert Ficano told the court he believed the traffic checkpoints were backed by the courts. He has said the police checkpoints in high-drug areas have been upheld against Constitutional challenge in the District of Columbia in U.S. v. McFayden.

Warehouse project is under way

Ground was broken last week for a three-warehouse distribution facility south of Romulus, the Huron Commerce Center.

Developers from The Prudential Property Company claim the industrial project will span more than two million square feet when completed.

The Huron Commerce Center is situated in Huron Township, two and one-half miles south of Detroit Metropolitan Airport, and is bounded by Interstate-275, Pennsylvania Road, Sibley Road and the CSX Railroad lines.

Groundbreaking ceremonies staged March 28 ended one year of planning for the warehouses.

Developers intend to complete this project in stages. The first phase of building development totals 236,000 square feet. The initial three buildings will be approximately 48,000, 77,000 and 111,000 square feet and will offer single or duplex facilities.

Huron Commerce Center is expected to be completely built by 1995, according to Scott Swedberg, vice president of The Prudential Property Company.

"The complex will offer excellent accessibility to all major expressways servicing Southeastern Michigan and the entire Midwest," he said.

Additional selling points—the buildings will provide offices to suit, and expandable parking lots.

Prudential representatives said they are in the early stages of pre-leasing the buildings, but they declined to release the names of potential tenants.

Bush pointed out that since the checkpoints, Inkster police have put into effect an alternative police operation. He said Inkster, working with law enforcement from Westland and the sheriff's department, "since March, have put into action a more successful program than the checkpoints. So why do we need checkpoints?"

"We will show that, instead of using a wide net and stop innocent citizens, there are alternative ways that can be directed at the bad guys," Bush added.

In September, sheriff's deputies working with Inkster police, set up checkpoints in Inkster and stopped 76 motorists in a highly-trafficked drug area on Spruce Street and in the Demby housing projects. The checkpoints led to 44 tickets for minor offenses, but no drug arrests.

The ACLU, acting on behalf of Edward Bivens Jr., a former mayor of Inkster, and state Sen. William Faust, sued the county sheriff, charging that the sheriff's actions violated the U.S. and Michigan Constitution, specifically, the illegal search aspect of the Fourth Amendment.

After hearing the final witness, Judge Rashid will give the parties 2 1/2 weeks to prepare and submit to him written briefs on what they believe the facts showed during the court hearing. The parties would reconvene before Judge Rashid on May 16.

When the picture began to look gloomy for students of Wayne-Westland Community Schools, the students took action.

Program cuts by the administration triggered a major walkout of students at Wayne Memorial High School, Adams Junior High School and Marshall Junior High School last week.

The students, at risk of losing all athletic, drama, music and art programs, walked calmly out of their classes and made their way on foot to the school administration building.

While the walkout and march ignited concerns of student safety and lost classroom learning time, we quietly take pride in these students who with such dignity and respect expressed their heartfelt concern over their educational system.

The students — of course there were a few who walked out just to avoid classes — did not cast blame on their school administrators. Rather they looked to the larger issue of state education finance reform and pleaded for support of a school millage to help make it through the immediate financial crunch.

The Wayne-Westland schools are in the same financial dire straits as most in-formula districts in Michigan. A recent failed attempt at a millage, left no alternative but to slash staff and programs in the district.

The students — many of them — seem to understand the position in which the schools find themselves. That, however, does not ease the pain when their favorite programs are eliminated from the district. Sports, music, drama and art are all part of their educational process. They would be missed, and the students wished only to express their concern and anger openly.

These students were not yet even a gleam in their mothers' eyes when students in the '60s, feeling so deeply about social issues, took to the streets in protest.

Photos which appeared in the print and broadcast media of the student walkout in Wayne-Westland schools called to mind similar scenes from the decade of protests.

The students clutching signs and chanting slogans made their way to the building where their fate is determined. The response of the administration was one of opposition to the walkout, but willingness to discuss the issue.

The students were threatened with suspension, but in the end were asked only to board a bus and return to their classroom. It would have been unfeeling to suspend these students who are feeling such pain at this time. The administrators took the right action.

Their walkout was a carefully planned and well-executed attempt to be heard. They were heard by us. And we understand their pain. We hope only that something can be done to restore the students' faith in the educational system.

Executive post elected, always

A question may appear on Wayne County ballots in the very near future. That question will be an amendment to the Home Rule Charter which dictates in what manner the Wayne County executive position is to be filled.

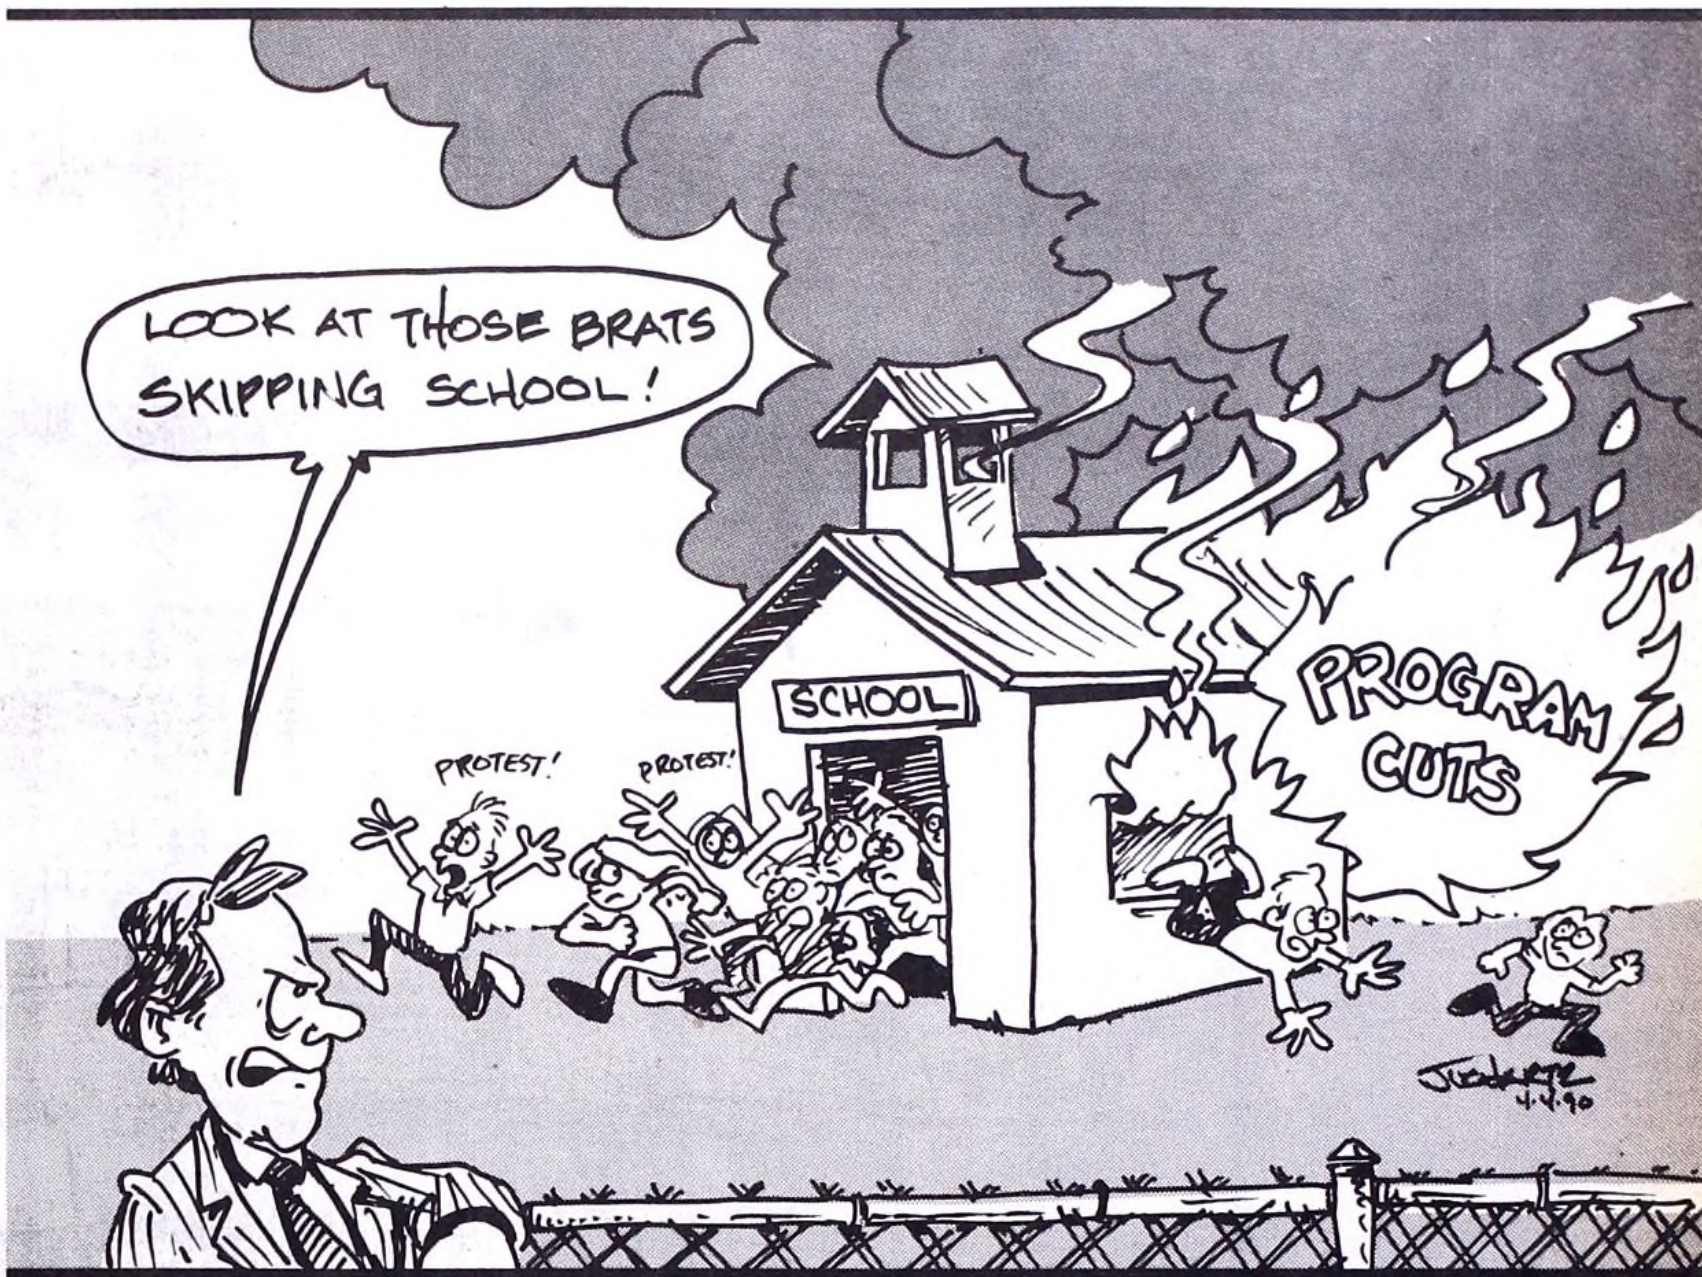

Presently, the charter calls for the advancement of the deputy executive — an executive appointee — to fill the shoes of the executive should a term not be completed.

If approved, the amendment would require the position to be filled by a vote of the people in a special election.

The county executive wields a great deal of power. He is the mayor, the president so to speak, of the county.

This power and authority should not simply be passed along to the next man at bat. Rather, voters should have an opportunity to express preference for a replacement.

The amendment merits consideration, and ultimately approval from the voters of Wayne County.

Kosteva punches back on legal newspaper

Free speech, freedom of the press and praises of fair competition often espoused by newspapers appear to be swept under the rug when trying to bring those goals to newspapers themselves. Last week's editorial appeared to be written with a broom instead of a pen.

State laws currently require minutes, local meetings, hearing notices and contract bids to be published only in "official" newspapers that publish weekly and have 25 percent editorial content. Through these requirements many newspapers across the state now enjoy near monopolistic control over the geographic regions they cover.

The language suggested in my House Bill 5616 would simply remove the barriers that many small newspapers/businesses now face to compete fairly. These barriers were drafted years ago by forefathers of the Michigan Press Association themselves in a fashion that smells of anti-trust to protect "big" newspapers.

Providing public notice and ensuring government accountability are the reasons that constitutional drafters insisted there be a free and open press. Is public notice served when a rural township has to publish its meetings in a regional newspaper er centered dozens of miles away, instead of a biweekly hometown paper? Some local monthly or biweekly newspapers have far greater circulation and distribution numbers than many weekly papers. Shouldn't these publications at least be given the right to seek local government printing bids? I say yes and let the local government decide, not the State or the big newspaper lobby.

Local communities may spend up to $50,000 per year printing minutes and notices. An "official" regional newspaper that attracts a few of these bids could easily attain an

"avaricious" (greedy) appetite at a cost to local taxpayers and, therefore, seek to exclude others from the bidding procedure.

The cream generally comes to the top in America and quality newspapers irrespective of printing frequency or percentage of editorial content should be entitled to provide their constitutional mandate; and local municipalities should have a free choice in selecting the local paper that will keep government in touch with and accountable to its citizens. — State Rep.

Beard supports county charter changes

Wayne County citizens may soon be able to vote on a ballot question to amend — and improve — their County Home Rule Charter for the third time since its adoption in 1981. This new ballot question would ask whether or not a special election should be held, if there is ever a vacancy during a county executive's term, as a result of resignation, recall, permanent incapacity, or death.

The Wayne County Commission is now considering a resolution to place this question on the ballot. But before making a decision, the commission will hold two public hearings (on April 3 in Westland and April 4 in Detroit), and if appropriate, make changes to the ballot question based on citizens' testimony.

I do not really expect there to be a mid-term vacancy in the office of county executive in the foreseeable future. But it is possible at some point in the years ahead, so a responsible transition process should be in place.

At present, the Charter does not allow the voters to elect a successor in a timely manner if this office is vacated. Instead an appointee, the deputy county executive, would automatically assume the office and hold it for up to two years, until the next regularly scheduled county election.

I believe that the office of county executive is too important to fill it by just shuffling an appointee upstairs. Furthermore, letting a county executive hand-pick an automatic successor would present a serious conflict, if the voters ever recall whomever had been elected to that office.

Therefore, citizens ought to be able to consider all the candidates, and directly choose the one they consider best for Wayne County. The goal of the proposed ballot question is, very simply, to let the voters themselves decide whether or not they want this opportunity.

The manufactured objections to the proposed ballot question, along with efforts to misconstrue its intent, lead me to suspect those who hope to benefit by the status quo are very uncomfortable about an open, competitive election.

Nevertheless, I strongly believe that the electoral process strengthens government — and keeps public officials responsive to the citizens they have an obligation to serve.

Therefore I urge Wayne County residents to insist on the opportunity to vote on whether to require a special election. Wayne County Commissioner Kay Beard.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Health program is misread

What's black and white and misread all over? Most definitely the criteria being promoted in the "comprehensive health program entitled MICHIGAN MODEL or "WELLNESS CURRICULUM" intended for use in both public and private schools.

Welcome to the world of doublespeak wherein you will encounter obscurity, negatives that appear positive, incongruity, misinformation, noninformation, misconception, euphemisms, and more, all intended to mislead, distort, deceive, confuse, inflate, circumvent and obfuscate the recipient or casual observer.

MICHIGAN MODEL proponents are utilizing doublespeak to promote or "enhance" the furtherance of this program much to the chagrin of taxpayers who have been double-taxed for duplication of health services being employed by MICHIGAN MODEL.

Parents, teachers and taxpayers would be well-advised to doublethink it over before acquiescing to a program whose agenda includes eventual state control over Michigan schools as this involves doubletrouble for all concerned!

Cage the high school?

February 13, as a resident and employee, I attended a special meeting of the Board of Education held to gain feedback and reactions to a proposed restructuring of Westwood schools. Some of the concerns voiced were very understandable, such as those living so close to Thorn having to face a long walk to Allen. Or fearing problems arising from having an elementary school in such proximity to a secondary school. Or the need for repairs in existing buildings against the cost of turning Allen into an elementary school.

However, one concern voiced repeatedly throughout the evening was a real surprise to me. That was the concern of having seventh- and eighth-graders attending Robichaud. From the comments made, one would think our high schoolers should be caged away from society. I have a real problem with this as the contacts I have had with our high school students has always been very positive. This includes once working in the office at Robichaud and having raised four children of my own. We do have those we would like to maroon in the middle of Lake Superior but these are the exception. Our young adults attending Robichaud are responsible and caring. They would be an asset to a junior high-aged student. They could have a positive influence in areas of appropriate behavior and grooming. They could be utilized as tutors to bring their younger schoolmates along in their studies. Jr. high students would benefit from the use of facilities available in the high school. On the contrary, when the seventh and eighth grades were moved into Robichaud before, it was the junior high-aged students that damaged the building and created problems. In raising my own four children I would have put much more faith in their character and responsibility at high school age than at junior high age. What we need to be doing is enlisting the cooperation and generosity of our high school students to share what they have with their younger brothers/sisters, not needlessly labeling them as work and the "proof is in the pudding" so to speak.

Those upset at the distance their child may have to travel to Allen as opposed to Thorne, need to see the larger picture. Many of our very young students have been required to walk excessively long distances to attend school. There is a real need to balance this out in order to be fair to all. Many students are missing too much school because of the distance traveled in bad weather with no transportation they can count on. The administration and board have felt a need to address this problem and try to come up with a more feasible plan with all students throughout the district having a more equal distance to travel to school.

The concern of having an elementary school so close to a secondary school would need to be addressed, with enough effective safeguards to reassure parents and students that they are not in any danger of being intimidated and bullied by older students. Again, perhaps this could be turned to an advantage with utilizing our high school potential in tutoring programs or, perhaps, as coaches for an intramural sports program among our grade schoolers.

Cost effectiveness and a realistic plan for handling all serious maintenance problems throughout the district should be shared with the community on a level they can understand.

Lastly I would like to say the tone of the meeting was not really fair to our administrators and board members. Whether this plan is good or bad, accepted or rejected, there is no doubt that a great deal of time was put into studying this proposal and that the reasons for it were in the best interests of our students. There is nothing in this plan to benefit anyone politically or selfishly. It doesn't make any sense to accuse them of not considering the students. Westwood administrators and board members do care very much and are trying at all times to educate our children in the best way possible. We must handle this one with our heads, not our emotions, ask questions, listen to what they have to say, and keep an open mind.

YOU'RE LOOKING AT A LETHAL WEAPON.

American Heart Association WE'RE FIGHTING FOR YOUR LIFE

Fact is, more Americans may die by the fork than by any other weapon. That's because so many of them use it irresponsibly. Like to fill up on high-fat, high-cholesterol foods. Foods that can load the blood with cholesterol, which can build up plaque in their arteries, increasing their risk of heart attacks and threatening their lives. So next time you pick up a fork, remember to handle it as you would any other weapon. For self-defense, not self-destruction.

Festivities planned for Earth Day revisited

By DIANNE THOMAS
ANP News Editor

Many of the individuals and groups celebrating Earth Day April 22, don't recall the original Earth Day 1970.

The event was viewed by many as the natural outcome of the peace and love movement of the 1960s, extending the love of mankind for one another to a love for the earth.

In celebrating Earth Day 1970, many city streets were closed to traffic and residents were invited to experience an urban picture none had ever seen . . . of people walking where cars usually travelled, breathing air that was temporarily free of pollution from not only auto emissions, but noise and threat of accident.

Although the memory of Earth Day 1970 is faint for many, the spirit of conservation has spread in 20 years.

Among the local celebrants of Earth Day 1990 will be the Western Wayne County Conservation Association, a group of hunters and outdoor enthusiasts concerned with preservation.

The organization will celebrate the day with an open house from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. April 22 at its facility on Napier Road in Plymouth Township. Visitors will be able to tour the wooded wildlife sanctuary maintained by WWCCA and will receive free pine seedlings as gifts.

"Because it's the 20th anniversary of Earth Day, and because of our interest in conservation, we thought this is a good first endeavor," said Charles VanCleck, Earth Day chairman for the organization.

VanCleck cited concerns for global warming, the diminishing of rain forests, and the pollution of ground water as reasons for concern among WWCCA members.

He said the group maintains its property for the use of members and as a necessary hedge against development which threatens wildlife in suburban areas.

WWCCA members will offer environmental information as part of the Earth Day activities.

Local actress to appear on stage

By JOAN DYER-ZINNER
Belleville City Editor

Each night through April 8, Martha Horste will be singing and dancing in the musical comedy, The Pajama Game, at the Quirk Theatre at Eastern Michigan University.

The play, a management-labor battle that boils over into a comedy, will be staged at 8 p.m. nightly and at 2:30 p.m. Sunday.

"I'm playing Poopie, one of the factory girls," said Horste, a 1988 graduate of Belleville High School. "She is kind of an airhead, and she's fun to portray. If you're going to be an airhead, the best place to be one is on stage where there's no drawbacks."

Horste, who is enrolled in the EMU theatre arts department, is far removed from being an "airhead" in real life. She works hard at her studies and her craft, and has set specific career goals for herself.

"I enjoy musicals, but I'm

ready to work in whatever comes my way," Horste said.

Her current role is the third one she has had since enrolling at EMU. Previously, she appeared in Noises Off and Love's Labors Lost. During her high school days, Horste participated in all the school plays, except Anything Goes.

"I sprained my ankle, and missed out on being in Anything Goes," Horste said. "Last year, I watched 42nd Street, and I was really sorry that I couldn't have been at BHS for just one more year so that I could have been in it. It's a terrific play, and they seemed to have pulled out all of the stops to make it a spectacular."

Horste has set her future sites on the Broadway stage, and, as a result, plans to locate in New York City next year.

"I plan to attend New York University. Originally, I had thought about going to Juilliard, but a friend advised me that NYU has a better program, and I'm taking him at his word," Horste said. "I'd like to gain more experience on the stage - it's the best training ground for actors. I'm also interested in films, but, so far, I haven't had any experience."

For now, her concentration is on being the best "airhead" she can be during the run of The Pajama Game.

Desserts

enough to marry my sister, he's got to have a few neurons synapsing. And, if the truth be told, this shortbread is also an acquired taste, just like baseball.

Uncle Tom's shortbread

2 sticks unsalted butter
1/8 teaspoon salt
1/4 cup white sugar
1/4 cup light brown sugar
2 cups plus 3 tablespoons all purpose flour

Preheat the oven to 325 degrees. In a large bowl beat the butter until softened and then add the salt and sugars. Beat until creamy and smooth. Gradually add the flour. Mix well. Divide the dough into three parts. Pat or roll each into a 5-inch circle on ungreased baking sheets, spacing at least 1 inch apart. Score each circle with the edge of a dull knife into eight equal wedges. Pierce the dough with the tines of a fork along the score lines, making sure the fork goes through to the baking sheet. Press a decorative edge onto each circle with the tips of the tines held flat. Press gently so as not to make the edge thinner than the rest of the dough.

Bake at 325 for 25 minutes or until the shortbread is a pale ivory bisque edged with golden brown. Cool slightly in the pans. As soon as cool enough to handle, cut or break apart along the score lines and cool the individual fans on wire racks. This makes three skirts or 24 fans of shortbread.

These ultra rich, not-so-sweet cookies will melt in your mouth and are wonderful with ice cream or sherbet. If you're like me and my brother-in-law, however, you'll love them just for themselves...sort of the way the whole family feels about him.

Island to be set aside for recreation, tourism

A national recreation area has now been established on Grand Island.

U.S. Sen. Donald Riegle announced Senate approval of the legislation last week. Riegle sponsored the legislation.

Grand Island is located in Lake Superior, just north of Munising in the Upper Peninsula. The 13,000-acre island is just offshore from the Pictured Rocks National Lakeshore.

"This action is a real accomplishment. It marks the end of a long struggle to preserve this national treasure," Riegle said. "It was only with the help and cooperation of local officials, island residents and members of the Forest Service that we were able to develop a workable plan."

This designation, Riegle said, should help to increase tourism in the Upper Peninsula and preserve a "pristine" natural area.

Last October, Congress approved the $3.5 million needed for the purchase of the island. The Forest Service purchased the island from the Trust for Public Lands in January. This legislation, Riegle said, will authorize the Forest Service to begin management plans for the island.

Grand Island offers isolated beaches and sheer cliffs rising 200 feet above Lake Superior. The island is home to the third-largest beaver-formed lake in the world, and is home to eagles, bear and many other forms of wildlife.

Currently, only residents of the island have access, but with this new legislation, the island will be opened to tourism. The island, however, will be protected from uncontrolled development and unsound environmental practices, Riegle said.

Under the legislation, 55 acres of the island are slated for development consistent with the forest management plan, more than 12,000 acres will remain undeveloped and timber cuts forbidden. Some roads will remain open to motorized vehicles, while others will be reserved for hiking only.

Food

Julienne stuffed chicken

- 2 ounces carrots, julienne
- 2 ounces yellow squash, julienne
- 2 ounces zucchini, julienne
- 2 ounces muenster cheese, julienne
- 4-6 ounce chicken breasts, boneless
- 4 basil leaves, fresh
- 12 tarragon leaves, fresh
- 4 ounces veloute sauce (see recipe below)
- Fresh chopped parsley, optional

Julienne carrots, squash, zucchini and muenster cheese. Take skin off chicken breasts. Place breast between two pieces of plastic wrap. Flatten with meat mallet until one-eighth inch thick. Put one half ounce carrots, squash, zucchini, cheese and three leaves of tarragon inside a fresh basil leaf and roll it up. Roll leaf into a chicken breast like an egg roll. Repeat this step with remaining chicken breasts. Bread chicken in "traditional" breading (flour, egg, seasoned bread crumbs). Bake at 350 degrees for approximately 20 minutes. Place on a one-ounce bed of veloute sauce, garnished with chopped fresh parsley.

Veloute sauce

- 1 quart hot water
- 1 ounce chicken base
- 1 3/4 ounce corn starch

Add chicken base to hot water to make a stock. Dilute cornstarch in a small amount of water. Slowly add to stock, whipping constantly. Continue to cook until thickened.

Rice medley

- 3 1/4 cups water
- 1 tablespoon margarine
- 1 cup white rice
- 1/2 cup brown rice
- 1/8 cup wild rice
- 1/8 cup pine nuts
- 1 teaspoon olive oil
- 1/2 cup green peppers diced to 1/4 inch

Bring water and margarine to boil. Add rice and cook until tender. (Follow directions on rice package). Sauté pine nuts in olive oil. Add peppers and saute for two minutes. Add peppers and nuts to rice. Mix and serve.

1/2 cup red peppers diced to 1/4 inch

Bring water and margarine to boil. Add rice and cook until tender. (Follow directions on rice package). Sauté pine nuts in olive oil. Add peppers and saute for two minutes. Add peppers and nuts to rice. Mix and serve.

Pineapple garnish

- 2 slices fresh pineapple
- 4 strawberries

Cut two and one half slices of fresh pineapple. Broil pineapple for 30 seconds on each side to mark. Cut pineapple in half and remove core. Cut strawberries partly through and form fan. Place strawberry fan in center of pineapple slice.

FLORENCE - THE ARTIST'S DREAM

Florence is the Athens of Italy. The metropolis is aburst with works of art bearing such names as Fra Angelico, Michelangelo, Botticelli, Donatello, Cellini and Leonardi da Vinci. The best part is you can easily walk to almost every major attraction.

The whole city is something of a museum in the best sense of the word. Within the city are forty smaller museums, a dozen great churches and countless buildings and churches of historical and artistic interest. This abundance of riches has one great advantage - you never have to plan about seeing anything in particular. Just start walking and step into the first palazzo that catches your eye.

When you're not admiring the art treasures of the city, you'll find yourself driving out of town to view magnificent villas of alabaster statuary, splashing fountains and gardens hanging over ochre-tinted walls. If you love art and treasure - you'll love Florence.

Eight day/Six night packages including Florence and Rome start as low as $1442 including air fare from Detroit.

Swimmer of the year

Albert Sneath,
Plymouth-Salem

Albert was part of the state qualifying 200-yard medley relay for the Rocks and captured fifth place in the WLAA conference meet with a 1:01.53 in the 100-yard backstroke. The junior has been a varsity swimmer since ninth grade. "Albert is a very versatile swimmer (and) tough competitor that made Plymouth-Salem WLAA champs three years in a row," said Olson.

Steve Geddes
Plymouth-Canton

The Plymouth-Canton senior co-captain is a very versatile swimmer, coach Hooker Wellman said, but Wellman asked him to swim the distance events. Geddes responded with a personal-best 5:16.10 in the conference 500-yard freestyle event, good for 10th place. He also placed ninth in the 200-yard freestyle at the WLAA conference meet and was part of the Chief's sixth-place 400-yard freestyle relay team.

Bryce Anderson
Plymouth-Canton

The other Canton co-captain had an impressive season, qualifying for the state meet in the 200-yard medley relay, 100-yard butterfly and 100-yard backstroke. He finished second to Orris in the conference meet in the 100-yard butterfly with a time of :54.02. He also placed second in the 100-yard backstroke, touching in at :57.18.

Tony Boon
Wayne Memorial

An all-conference selection in the Wolverine "A" Conference, Tony was part of the Zebra state-qualifying 400-yard freestyle relay team. The senior swimmer captured two second-place finishes in the WAC swim meet, swimming a 1:54.48 in the 200-yard freestyle and a 5:15.42 in the 500-yard freestyle event.

Ray Blankenship
Wayne Memorial

The Zebra senior swimmer was part of the state-qualifying 400-yard freestyle relay team, clocking a :49.7 in his 100-yard split. He garnered two fourth-place finishes in the WAC league meet in the 50-yard freestyle (:23.07) and the 100-yard backstroke (1:00.41) and was named to the all-conference squad. "Ray has worked harder this year than in years past and it has paid off for him," Ferguson said.

Tim Sauers
Wayne Memorial

Another leg of the Wayne 400-yard relay team, Tim swam a :50.3 split on the state-qualifying relay team. "I remember Tim going 1:10.00 in a 100 free in ninth grade," Ferguson said. "He's come a long way." Sauers came all the way to a third-place finish in the 100-yard freestyle event at the WAC league meet with a :51.10.

Ron Orris has been named swimmer of the year for the 1989-1990 swim season as part of the Associated Newspapers All-Area Swim Team.

This is a slight variation of the all-area team selections, but sometimes you just have to break the rules.

In Orris' case, most times you just have to break the records.

The 6-foot-5-inch senior captain of the Plymouth-Salem swim team capped a fantastic season by establishing two state records in the individual finals earlier this month. Orris etched his name in the record books by swimming a 1:50.97 in the 200-yard individual medley and touching in at :49.79 in the 100-yard butterfly event.

Equally impressive was Orris' performance throughout the season as he led the Rocks to their third consecutive Western Lakes Athletic Association league title. He was undefeated during the entire season and set three new WLAA records in the 200-yard freestyle, 100-yard butterfly and 100-yard freestyle events. Orris also has league records in the 200-yard individual medley and the 500-yard freestyle.

"The great thing about his accomplishments was maintaining a 3.6 grade-point average," Rock coach Chuck Olson said, "And the respect he showed for his teammates, opponents, coaches and fans."

Orris' swim resume goes on. He has been named to the all-state team three times, qualified for the all-American team five times and been an all-conference selection in each of his four years in high school.

He set five pool records and has seven Plymouth-Salem varsity records.

"Ron Orris deserves the admiration of his school, his community and the entire state of Michigan," Olson said. "The best young man I've ever coached in 20 years."

Eddy Trudo
Belleville

The senior Tiger tri-captain was the leadoff man on the state qualifying 400-yard freestyle relay team and swam a :49.2 split. He placed third in the league meet in the 200-yard freestyle with a time of 1:54.65 and sixth in the 500-yard freestyle. "I'm proud of him," Cooper said. "Eddy was selected as the most improved senior this year and is a walking testimony that hard work pays off."

Joe Pawluszka
Plymouth-Salem

Joe was part of the Rock state qualifying 400-yard freestyle relay team which finished second at the league meet with a 3:20.09 mark. He also captured fifth place in the 50-yard freestyle with a :23.4 and the 100-yard freestyle, clocking in at :51.35. "Joe is a great young man who is very competitive and shows leadership abilities," coach Olson said. He also carries a 4.0 grade-point average.

Chris Caloia
Plymouth-Salem

Chris was an important part of the Rock state qualifying relay teams, participating in the 200-yard medley and the 400-yard freestyle relays. He also was coach Chuck Olson's freestyle sprint specialist, taking fourth place in both the 50- and 100-yard freestyle events at the WLAA conference meet, clocking in at :23.16 and :50.56, respectively. The senior is a four-year varsity swimmer.

Trevor Yeary
Belleville

Coach Greg Cooper is looking to this versatile junior swimmer as team leader for next year, and all indications are positive Trevor can handle the responsibilities. This Tiger took second place at the WAC conference meet in two events, the 200-yard individual medley (2:10.05) and the 100-yard backstroke (:59.61) and swam a :51.4 split in his leg on the state qualifying 400-yard

Jason Bodden
Wayne Memorial

A talented Zebra sophomore swimmer to watch, Jason placed second in the WAC league meet in the 50-yard and 100-yard freestyle events with times of :22.61 and :50.83, respectively. He also was on the Wayne state 400-yard freestyle relay team. "Jason is capable of going in the top six in state for the 50 free in his next two years at Wayne," Ferguson said.

Larry Cain
Wayne Memorial

Larry came up big at the Wolverine "A" Conference swim meet, taking second place in the diving competition with 357.30 points. The sophomore also qualified for the state regional meet and placed 15th, just missing the cut for state qualification. "Larry was really sick, running a 100-degree temperature at regionals," coach Randy Ferguson said.

Bryan Bogardus
Belleville

A senior tri-captain, Bryan was a driving force in the Tigers 11-1 season and a second-place finisher in the league meet. Though his best event is the backstroke, Bryan set a team record in the 100-yard freestyle (:48.60) and placed first in the league and 12th in the state meet in the 50-yard freestyle with a mark of :22.65. He is a three-time all-league selection in the Wolverine "A" Conference.

Mike Bird
Belleville

Mike was Cooper's long-distance man and was the WAC league champion in the 200- and 500-yard freestyle events, clocking in at 1:51.22 and 5:05.64, respectively. The senior tri-captain was also part of the state qualifying 400-yard relay team, swimming a :48.7 split in his leg of the team. "He really surprised the coaching staff and the team by sprinting so well at the year's end," said Cooper.

Coach of the Year Tiger mentor is among the best

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Staff Writer

Belleville High has had some outstanding swimmers and swim teams over the past two decades.

And the 1989-90 team, despite the obvious obstacle of having to 'pay-to-swim', was no exception.

Coach Greg Cooper, a former Tiger swim ace, who guided his team to an 11-1 won-lost record and a second place in the wolverine 'A' Conference, has managed to continue that tradition.

He attributes the success of his team to "hard work and the willingness of each member to go just an extra step for the team."

Cooper also is ready to go that "extra step."

When voters in the Van Buren School District turned down a millage increase, the school board was forced to implement a pay-for-play policy for the second time in the school district's recent history. Athletes were asked to pay $250 each to compete in their favorite sport.

However, the policy took its toll. Cooper had 15 less swimmers out this year than he had the previous year.

"It's difficult under such trying circumstances to go coach," he said, "but we all managed to give that extra effort and take that extra step. It has paid off."

For giving that extra effort, the Associated Newspapers has selected Greg Cooper as its 'Coach of the Year' in swimming.

A 1980 graduate of Belleville High, Cooper was a member of the Associated Newspapers' All-Area Swim & Diving Teams for three successive years before his graduation. He attended the University of Colorado after graduation before transferring to EMU.

Greg Cooper

Here's how we choose all area

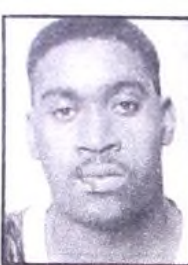

When an athlete races against time, it is relatively easy to pick the top performers. Those who have the best times usually wind up on the team.

Using an All-Area candidate's time trials as a criterion, the Associated Newspapers' Sports Staff and the local coaches were able to come up with the candidates for the outstanding team featured today on this page.

But there is more in making the final cut. Some of the swimmers made the grade because they were willing to sacrifice for the overall success of their team. They would swim in events to earn that extra point that would make their team a winner, despite the fact that the swimmer may have been better in another event.

The ANP sports staff is proud to present our readers the members of the 1989-90 All-Area Team.

Inkster seeks softball teams

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Staff Writer

While Mother Nature has obviously decided to take her time warming up Michigan this spring, Inkster recreation officials are not waiting for warmer weather and are busy preparing for the 1990 summer softball season.

Recreation officials this week announced they are looking for players and teams to compete in various divisions of the summer slow- and fast-pitch leagues.

An organizational meeting has been scheduled for 7 p.m. April 23 to discuss an adult men's Class C softball league in Inkster.

The league will begin action May 18.

Team coaches or sponsors will have to come up with a $325 registration fee.

The meeting will be conducted at the Inkster Recreation Complex, 2121 Inkster Road. There is a May 11 deadline to submit the entry fee.

Officials are also planning an adult co-ed softball league. The league will begin to play June 1, and a $125 entry fee is due on or before May 25.

The organizational meeting will be conducted 7 p.m. Wednesday, April 18 at the Inkster Recreation Complex. Those who miss the initial meeting are urged to participate in the second talks, scheduled for 7 p.m. on May 16. The final

New grid format

State playoffs to add more teams

To eliminate the criticism that many outstanding high school football teams do not have an opportunity to compete in the state playoffs, the Michigan High School Athletic Association last week announced a change in the present playoff format.

Presently, state football titles are decided in Class A, B, C, and D - and a team classification is determined by the number of students who attend the school. The largest schools are given 'A' designations. The present designations will remain, and new ones will be added in order to permit those schools with smaller enrollments to compete for a state title.

The MHSAA, the body that sets the guidelines and establishes rules for schools in the state, has come up with four new divisions. The largest divisions in each classification will be distinguished, as follows: Class AA, Class BB, Class CC, and Class DD.

By adding the new divisions, MHSAA officials noted the presented field of 64 would be increased to 120 teams.

The MHSAA said it acted on a recommendation from its football advisory council.

"The council was aware of a lot of sentiment throughout the state to expand the playoffs because many felt there were some outstanding teams that were not being given the opportunity to compete for the state title," pointed out Jack Roberts, MHSAA executive director.

"This plan makes the playoffs more accessible to more teams, especially the smaller schools in each class."

Murawski honored

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Staff Writer

Because of a typographical error, the name of Scott Murawski was inadvertently left off the Associated Newspapers All-Area Wrestling Team.

Murawski, a senior who has helped the Eagles of Romulus win two of the last three South Central Conference titles, posted an outstanding 29-9-1 record as a 160-pounder in his final year as a member of Coach Norm Butler's team.

Murawski was a silver medalist in the SCC and also qualified for the regional tournament after placing third in the districts. We regret the error and any inconvenience it may have caused.

Robichaud track star shines in Huron relays

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Staff Writer

Tyrone Wheatley started the 1990 high school track and field season the way he ended last season - setting records.

Competing at the Huron Relays in Ypsilanti Saturday, the 17-year-old Robichaud junior captured a gold medal in one of his specialties - the long jump. He also shared a first in one of the dash events.

Wheatley, who a year ago won the Class B state titles for the 100-yard dash and the long jump, soared 24 feet 1 3/4 inches at Bowen Fieldhouse to win the event with little difficulty. In fact, he topped the best of the Class A field, Jackson's Ali Shakoor, who finished with the gold in that division for his 23 feet, 4 3/4 inches leap.

Wheatley's incredible feat in the long jump, pulled off so early

Wheatley's incredible feat in the long jump, pulled off so early in the season, set a meet record and is the longest a Michigan high school athlete has ever jumped indoors.

ly in the season, also set a meet record and is the best a Michigan high school athlete has ever jumped indoors.

The multitasking Wheatley, who is considered one of the finest running backs in football and a cage star, also won a gold in the 55-meter dash.

Wheatley and Erik Kynard, wearing the colors of Toledo Macomber, finished in a "dead heat" for first place in the dash event. Both sprinters were clocked in 6.5.

However, Robichaud, a perennial title threat on the Suburban Athletic Conference circuit, apparently will have to find a way to stop River Rouge this season if the Bulldogs hope to finish atop the SAC pile.

The Panthers of Rouge served notice at the relays that they have to be the top choice for the 1990 championships.

Rouge outscored Cleveland East Tech at the indoor meet by six points to walk off with the Class B title. Rouge had 48 team points as compared to the defending champ's 42.

There were 42 teams competing in the relays, usually the kickoff event for the high school track and field season. Eastern Michigan University has been the annual host for the annual relays.

In the meantime, the Colts of Troy claimed the Class A title with 37 points in a field that brought 76 prep teams together from Michigan and Ohio. Troy edged Pinckney by six points for the championship.

Most local track teams will be on the invitational trail again this weekend as they travel to East Lansing to compete in the Spartan Relays, hosted by Michigan State University.

Prep sports coaches, attention

The 1990 high school spring sports season was off to a fast start last weekend as most track and field teams competed in invitational.

The baseball and softball seasons, for most local teams, will begin today.

Coaches are urged to contact the Associated Newspapers' sports desk during the week with results. If the staff doesn't hear from you, they will be calling coaches Sunday.

Thank you for your cooperation.

Call 729-4000 with the results or for further information.

The ANP sports staff would like to thank local athletic directors for mailing their spring schedules. However, the ANP is still waiting to hear from two of the officials.

Automatic tellers installed

The U.S. Post Office is becoming more and more creative in their efforts to offer services to customers.

Foster homes needed

Foster homes for teen-age girls are being sought by Girlstown Foundation, a residential Belleville-based facility licensed by the Wayne County Department of Social Services.

The girls, between the ages of 13 and 17, need foster parents who are able to provide basic necessities, guidance, support and general care, and who are able to respond to the unique needs of youths who are on their own, said staff member Joe Dula.

"An orientation session begins the process, and foster parents and teens are matched for compatibility," Dula said.

Information may be obtained by calling 697-7242.

First, philatelic boutiques were established in various post offices, and branch offices were opening in malls and stores.

Now, the postal officials can form new business partnerships with banks through automatic teller machines.

Self-service automatic teller machines, now found at banks and retail outlets throughout the country, will soon be available in post offices, according to Assistant Postmaster General Gordon C. Morrison.

Postal officials believe the partnerships will be very profitable to banks. There are 40,000 postal lobbies in the country, and nearly six million walk-in customers conduct their cash transactions each day there.

A Seattle bank was the first to install an automatic teller machine in a post office lobby.

Morrison said special sheets of stamps will also be designed so customers can buy their stamps directly from the ATM.

No post offices locally have entered into such agreements with banks.

Local dealership is awarded for service

The Crestwood Dodge dealership at 32850 Ford Road in Garden City and the president of the business, Rob Robbins, have recently received three of Chrysler Motors most prestigious awards for 1989 sales and service performance.

The popular dealership was honored with the Dodge Charger Sales Award for being one of the top volume dealerships in the nation for the 10th consecutive year. Robbins, coincidentally, has owned the dealership for 10 years.

"We're somewhat different than other dealerships," Robbins said. "We recruit and hire sales people from other fields. We don't hire car salespeople from other dealerships. We train them our way in total customer service to ensure professionalism. I believe we have a better touch with our customers."

Robbins certainly seems qualified to train his staff any way he sees fit. He began his career in sales for the Buick Division of General Motors, moving into the consulting and training aspect of car sales. He traveled the country and Canada teaching better ways to treat customers before seeing the opportunity to return to the Detroit area as a dealership owner.

"I'm from Ferndale and my wife is from the area also so we decided to move back to the area," Robbins said. "I didn't want to spend my entire career in the corporate world, so when the opportunity came to invest in this dealership, I took it."

When he took over the dealership, the metro Detroit area was embroiled in one of the worst auto recessions in years, but Robbins' unique style of customer service helped the dealership prosper in even those trying times.

Spare Parts

"Mr. Iacocca's taking over and the introduction of the 1981 K car helped dramatically," Robbins said.

Robbins directed the 20,000-square-foot expansion of the Dodge facility which has become the standard for dealerships across the country. The dealership service area is almost completely computerized, from an intercom system for service technicians to ordering parts without leaving the vehicle on which they are working to a machine capable of testing vehicles at highway speeds without leaving the facility.

"Our system allows us to service more customers in less time," Robbins said. "Our customers have more important things to do than wait around our dealership for their car."

The satisfaction derived by customers at Crestwood Dodge was evidenced by the presentation to the dealership of the Five Star Service Award for superior and outstanding customer satisfaction.

The highly coveted award is given to dealerships that have achieved excellence in service technician tool use and training, sales assignment achievement, customer satisfaction surveys and a facility inspection by Chrysler Motor representatives.

The Crestwood Dodge facility easily surpassed expectations in every category, according to Chrysler officials.

Crestwood also offers a rare six-day per week service department for patrons who can't get their car in during the work week.

Cyclists to hit streets safely

The return of warm weather to the area also brings with it the return of some 60,000 motorcyclists to the streets.

Sixty-five percent of all motorcycle accidents are caused by car drivers, according to Vince Consiglio of the Motorcycle Safety Foundation. Car drivers need to be aware of the seasonal influx of cyclists on the road and remember to check before changing lanes.

May has been designated as Motorcycle Awareness Month, with a number of safety courses sponsored by the Motorcycle Safety Foundation.

Courses in motorcycle safety, performance driving and safety instruction are available to those interested. Registration information is available by calling the Huron public schools in New Boston, 782-1505, the Schoolcraft College in Livonia at 462-4448 and the Wayne County Community College at 496-2777.

If your dealership has recently won an award or is involved in something of interest to the community, call John Agge at 729-4000, extension 230 for possible inclusion in the Wheels section.

Condominiums like Pike's Peak in Westland are becoming a favorite alternative for those who want the tax advantages of home ownership without the work. ANP file photo

THE NEW CHOICE

Condominiums gain popularity
among the empty-nesters

BY TOM MOORADIAN

Condominium owners, builders and developers agree: "You can't beat living in a condo."

"There are obvious advantages of living in and owning a condominium," said George Wilhelmi, planning director for the city of Westland. "You don't have the burden of outside maintenance, there are the tax benefits of home ownership, and the security of living in a controlled environment, that is, you don't have to worry about what will happen to your property if you go on vacation. Some of these places have guards to check visitors."

"And, apparently, developers are not having any problems filling the units they're building, just look what is happening here in Westland," Wilhelmi added. In Westland, as in neighboring Wayne, Romulus, Canton and Van Buren townships, there are several major condominium projects under construction.

Arbor Oaks, a condominium community of ranch-style and colonial homes with two-car garages that will have price tags between $120,000 to $130,000 are being built by Associated Builders of Farmington Hills; D & K Contractors of Westland is in the process of making Marquette Village, a 120-unit condominium complex in the Marquette and Wayne Road area a reality; Hunter Pointe, at Hunter and Yale, which will include 150 units of two-bedroom ranch and townhouse-type, with one-car garages whose price range is in the low- to mid-$80,000 range, also presently is under construction.

Add to the list Greenpointe, 50 units of condos priced at $120,000 to $140,000, and the already existing list of condominiums, and there is no arguing the fact that condominium living is gaining in popularity with Westland home buyers.

Although Westland will have a problem accommodating large developments in the future because of the wetlands controversy and the lack of suitable land, Canton and Romulus still have ample construction sites for condominiums.

The condominium community will remain a viable one for some time in the future, according to Wilhelmi.

Why?

Wilhelmi expresses the feelings of most of the developers and owners.

"There are many reasons," Wilhelmi said. "Among some of the primary reasons why people are buying into condominiums is that there are those 'empty nesters', who, with children grown, are tired of maintaining a big home."

"And, unlike renting, when you purchase a condo you still are building equity in your investment because you are the owner. There are the obvious tax breaks that come with owning the property as compared to renting."

"Add to those advantages, the security factor, and that's why developers, in my opinion, are having little trouble selling what they're building," Wilhelmi said. ■
